Occupational Description

Astronomer

Research Requirements:

Search the sites found under Resources. Read lots of information about your team's planet. You will be considered the team's expert on the physical conditions of the planet and how these conditions affect the ability of humans to live and breathe on this planet.

Taking Notes:

Take notes on interesting information, facts, or unique features of this planet. Copying information word for word and sharing it as your own is illegal and many times sounds boring or out of place with your own writing voice.

Brochure Requirements:

The brochure you create needs to contain the following:

- information about the physical characteristics of the planet
- historical information about planet (significance of planet's name, visits by space probes, important discoveries about planet)
- retell a mythological account from any culture about this planet
- company name and logo

Creative Bonus:

The brochure may also include the following:

- how information about the various planets has been gathered
- descriptions of the uniqueness of your planet
- technical information using graphic organizers
- build a scale model of your planet
- additional creative ideas
